Lecturers in the Program in Public Health --Unit -18/Pre-Six

The Program in Public Health at the University of California, Irvine invites applications for visiting lecturer positions. These appointments will be made as the need arises to cover specific topics in the field of Public Health and will generally be at least for one quarter. Previous experience in teaching these courses or similar courses at the University of California or an equivalent setting. The salary is commensurate with experience, at varying percentages of time depending on the course assigned with an expected effort of 10-15 hours per week.

NOW HIRING: 2 Positions

The Department of Population Health and Disease Prevention, Program in Public Health at the University of California, Irvine announces the availability of up to two positions as LECTURER.

Applicants should hold a Ph.D., Dr.P.H., M.D., or equivalent degree, and will be expected to teach core requirements of the undergraduate degrees, including (but not limited to) Principles of Public Health (Public Health 1) Case Studies in Public Health Practice (Public Health 2), AIDS Fundamentals (Public Health 80), Introduction to Epidemiology (Public Health 101), and Public Health Practicum (Public Health195W).

Candidates may be expected to contribute to teaching upper division courses, including courses that support the Public Health Minor, the Certificate in Global Health, and to support a prospective Public Health workforce development curriculum. Ability to supervise students in the Honors Research and Clinical and Translational Science Preparatory course sequences will be considered. Candidates should possess excellent pedagogical and organizational skills.

Those with expertise in teaching critical thinking (including but not limited to statistics and study design) and writing about public health issues for various audiences are particularly encouraged to apply. The successful applicant will be expected to assist with the undergraduate public health practicum program; supervise students in directed and independent study; mentor honors research students; and participate in departmental service activities.

Please apply at: https://recruit.ap.uci.edu/apply/JPF02750

The Program in Public Health at the University of California Irvine is fully accredited by the Council on Education for Public Health, with more than 1,500 undergraduate majors (BA and BS); approximately 50 students in the MPH program with concentrations in environmental health, epidemiology, and sociocultural diversity and health; and a PhD in Public Health with concentrations in global health and disease prevention. The successful candidate will be able to teach at all these levels, including large undergraduate lecture courses. The normative teaching load for this position is in-line with the specifications of the University of California lecturer series.
The University of California, Irvine is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer advancing inclusive excellence. All qualified applicants will receive consideration for employment without regard to race, color, religion, sex, national origin, disability, age, protected veteran status, or other protected categories covered by the UC nondiscrimination policy.